The Extremal Principle — problem 3.44

A. Engel — Problem-Solving Strategies · 1998

There are n students in each of three schools. Any student has altogether $n + 1$ acquaintances from the other two schools. Prove that one can select one student from each school, so that the three selected students know each other.