Polynomials — problem 10.81

A. Engel — Problem-Solving Strategies · 1998

Prove that, for any polynomial $p(x)$ of degree greater than 1, we can substitute another polynomial $q(x)$ for x, such that $p(q(x))$ can be factored into a product of polynomials, different from constants. (All polynomials have integral coefficients.)